BIOGRAPHICAL STUDY OF USAF GENERAL OFFICERS,

1917 - 1952

INTRODUCTION

Great effort has been expended to achieve completed accuracy in the 541 biographical sketches of which study is composed. The absolute accomplishment of this work would be the work of many years, if even then the goal could be reached. Nevertheless, it is hoped that the careful material which has been assembled and the care which has been exercised have combined to keep the omissions and errors to a minimum.

The chronological breaks in each general officer's record assignments, together with the unplanned omissions and unplanned inaccuracies, are occasioned or caused chiefly by the following factors: 1) periods of study in military or civilian schools, 2) gaps in the primary and secondary sources that have been discovered, 3) squadron assignments less than command;
4) leave, travel, hospitalization, and 5) the reversion of an officer to a rank lower than brigadier general.

MAJOR GENERAL GEORGE ROBERT ACHESON, USAF

George Robert Acheson was born in Lewiston, Maine, January 21, 1904. He attended the University of Maine and enlisted in the Army as a private February 17, 1925.

After serving with the 24th Pursuit Squadron at France Field, Panama Canal Zone, he was appointed a flying cadet in the Air Service and began primary flying training at Brooks Field, Texas, in March 1926. In September of that year he went to Kelly Field, Texas, for advanced flying training, completed the course, and was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Reserve February 28, 1927. The following June he was appointed a second lieutenant of Air Corps in the Regular Army and assigned with the Third Attack Group at Fort Crockett, Texas. In October 1927, he became squadron maintenance inspector of the Eighth Attack Squadron at Fort Crockett and later served there as post and group personnel adjutant of the Third Attack Group.

General Acheson became a flying instructor at the Brooks Field Primary Flying School in September, 1929, and in October 1931, assumed the same duties at Randolph Field, Texas. He entered the Air Corps Technical School at Chanute Field, Illinois, in September 1932 and completed the armament course the following March. He then became squadron adjutant of the 99th Observation Squadron at Mitchel Field, New York. In January 1934, he joined the Eighth Pursuit Group at Langley Field, Virginia. After a tour of duty as an air mail pilot with the Army Air Corps mail operations, from February to May 1934, he returned to the 99th Observation Squadron.

In January 1935, General Acheson began a special training in advanced air navigation with the 19th Bombardment Group at Rockwell Field, California, and the following March returned to Mitchel Field as intelligence and operations officer of the First Bombardment Squadron. He went to Hawaii in July 1937, where he served at Schofield Barracks as intelligence and operations officer of the 26th Attack Squadron. In November 1938, he became commanding officer of that unit and subsequently commanded the 86th Observation Squadron there.

General Acheson, in August 1940, joined the 43rd Bombardment Squadron at MacDill Field, Florida, where he assumed command of the 67th Bombardment Squadron in May 1941. The following September he became materiel officer for the First Air Support Service Command at Pope Field, North Carolina. In July 1942, he was appointed Supervisor of Training of the Officers Training Unit at Barksdale Field, Louisiana, and later served as Assistant Chief of the Air Staff for Operations of the Third Bomber Command at MacDill Field. He was named commanding officer of the 55th Bombardment Wing at MacDill Field in June 1943, and the following January went to the North African theater of operations as commander of that wing.

MORE

In June 1945, General Acheson was assigned to command the War Department Personnel Center at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. In September 1945, he was assigned to AAF headquarters with temporary duty at Fort Logan, Colorado, with the War Department Officer's Screening Board. In May 1946, he was assigned to the 13th Air Force, with headquarters at Leyte, Philippine Islands, and two months later became its chief of staff. In March 1947, he was assigned to the Far East Air Materiel Command, with detached service as commanding general of the Philippine Air Materiel Area. The following month the Philippine AMA was redesignated the Fourth Air Depot.

In October 1947, he was appointed chief of staff of the Fifth Air Force, with headquarters at Nagoya, Japan. In June 1949, he became deputy for materiel of Continental Air Command, with headquarters at Mitchel Air Force Base. The following November he was appointed deputy commander of the Eastern Air Defense Force at Mitchel AFB. In March 1951, he assumed command of the Central Air Defense Force at Kansas City, Missouri.

In February 1953, General Acheson was appointed commanding general of the Alaskan Air Command, with headquarters at Elmendorf Air Force Base, Alaska.

General Acheson has been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal, Legion of Merit, Distinguished Flying Cross, and Air Medal with one oak leaf cluster. He is rated a command pilot.

BRIGADIER GENERAL HAROLD HUNTLEY BASSETT, USAF

Harold Huntley Bassett was born in Albion, Illinois, April 1, 1907. He was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy and commissioned a second lieutenant in the Corps of Engineers June 13, 1929.

In September 1929, he began flying training and after graduating from primary and advanced flying schools at March Field, California, and Kelly Field, Texas, respectively, was rated a pilot and transferred to the Air Corps December 11, 1930.

General Bassett's first assignment was with the 18th Pursuit Group at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii. In February 1933, he was assigned as an instructor at the flying school at Randolph Field, Texas, and in July 1935, entered California Institute of Technology, from which he received his Master of Science degree a year later.

General Bassett then became assistant signal officer at Hamilton Field, California, and in June 1937, was named regional control officer for the First Weather Region, with station at March Field, California. He entered the Air Corps Tactical School at Maxwell Field, Alabama, in April 1940, and upon graduation two months later went to Wheeler Field, Hawaii, as base adjutant. He was appointed personnel officer for the 14th Pursuit Wing at Wheeler Field in May 1941, and the following November assumed command of the 18th Air Base Group there.

In July 1942, General Bassett entered the Naval War College at Newport, Rhode Island, and upon graduation in December 1942, was named Acting Director of Weather at AAF headquarters, Washington, D. C. He became Director of Weather in February 1943; the following month was designated chief of Flight Control there, and in September 1943, was named chief of the Weather Division at AAF headquarters.

General Bassett, in January 1945, was appointed Director of Weather for the U. S. Strategic Air Forces in Europe, with station at St. Germain, France. He assumed command of the 59th Weather Wing at Wiesbaden, Germany, in September 1945, and in August 1946, became commander of the Fifth Weather Wing, also at Wiesbaden.

In July 1947, General Bassett entered the National War College and upon graduation a year later was assigned to the Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff for duty as Assistant Director for Intelligence of the Joint Intelligence Group. He was named deputy commander of the USAF Security Service, with headquarters at Brooks Air Force Base, Texas, in June 1951. In February 1953, he assumed command of that Service. In August 1953, he was assigned to Kelly Air Force Base, Texas, retaining his previous position.

General Bassett has been awarded the Legion of Merit with one Oak Leaf Cluster, the Bronze Star Medal, the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Army Commendation Ribbon, and the French Croix de Guerre. He is rated a command pilot and aircraft observer.

General Bassett is married and has one child.

LIEUTENANT GENERAL GLENN O. BARCUS

Glenn Oscar Barcus was born in Genoa, Illinois, July 25, 1903. He was graduated from the University of Illinois at Champaign in June 1924.

Appointed a second lieutenant in the Cavalry Reserve September 11, 1924, General Barcus received a Regular Army commission as second lieutenant in the Field Artillery the following June. He joined the Second Cavalry at Fort Riley, Kansas, on September 30, 1925. A year later he entered Primary Flying School at Brooks Field, Texas, and was graduated from Advanced Flying School at Kelly Field, Texas, the following year.

Assigned as operations officer of the 27th Pursuit Squadron at Selfridge Field, Michigan, in October 1928, General Barcus returned to the Primary Flying School as a flying instructor, and three years later went to Randolph Field, Texas, in that capacity. Going to Hawaii in April 1933, he became intelligence and operations officer for the 18th and 19th Pursuit Squadrons at Schofield Barracks. In September 1935 he assumed command of the 35th Pursuit Squadron at General Headquarters Air Force, Langley Field, Virginia. Entering the Air Corps Tactical School at Maxwell Field, Alabama, in June 1939, he was graduated the following February and returned to Langley Field as operations officer of the 22nd Pursuit Squadron.

Going to Puerto Rico in March 1941, General Barcus was plans and training officer for the Sixth Interceptor Command at Losey Field. During the early months of World War II he was in command of the 22nd Fighter Squadron in Puerto Rico, and soon thereafter he assumed command of the 36th Group there. Moving to Trinidad in February 1942, he helped form the Interceptor Command, and that April he was sent to Washington, D.C., as Deputy Director for Air Defense at Army Air Force Headquarters. In December 1942 he assumed command of the Philadelphia Air Defense Wing, and the following April became commander of the First Fighter Command at Mitchel Field, New York.

Ordered to Naples, Italy, in April 1944, General Barcus assumed command of the 64th Fighter Wing. The following February he became commanding general of the 12th Tactical Air Command, with headquarters near Nancy, France. He became chief of staff of the Tactical Air Command at Langley Field in September 1946, and the following March assumed command of the 12th Air Force at March Field, California, moving it to Brooks Air Force Base, Texas. In September 1949 he was named commanding general of the First Air Force at Fort Slocum, New York, and moved it to Mitchel Air Force Base, New York, a month later.

Returning to Langley Air Force Base in July 1950, General Barcus assumed command of the Tactical Air Command, becoming Deputy Commander the following January, and Chief of Staff, TAC, that May.

MORE

Moving to the Far East Air Forces at Korea in May 1952, General Barcus was appointed special assistant to the commanding general of the Fifth Air Force, and later that month assumed command of the Fifth Air Force. He was named vice command of the Air Training Command at Scott Air Force Base, Illinois, in July 1953, and a year later assumed command.

On July 26, 1954, General Barcus assumed command of the Northeast Air Command at Pepperrall Air Force Base, Newfoundland, and was designated Commander-in-Chief of the U.S. Northeast Command.

His decorations include the Distinguished Service Medal, Legion of Merit, Distinguished Flying Cross, and the Bronze Star Medal. He is rated a command pilot, combat observer, and aircraft observer.

General Barcus is married to the former Miss Corinne E. Van Sant of Lamont, Oklahoma.

PROMOTIONS

He was promoted to first lieutenant August 1, 1931; to captain August 1, 1935; to major (temporary) November 16, 1940; to lieutenant colonel (temporary) December 24, 1941; to colonel (temporary) March 1, 1942; to major (permanent) June 30, 1942; to brigadier general (temporary) May 3, 1943; to major general (temporary) October 25, 1947; to colonel (permanent) April 2, 1948; to brigadier general (permanent) June 11, 1948; to major general (permanent) October 9, 1951; to lieutenant general (temporary) June 10, 1952; he reverted to his permanent rank of major general June 1, 1953; was promoted to lieutenant general (temporary) July 26, 1954.

SECURITY INFORMATION

1. The first of these is the fact that the United States has a long and proud history of leadership in the world. This leadership has been based on a commitment to the principles of freedom, democracy, and the rule of law. It is this commitment that has made the United States a model for other nations and a source of inspiration for people everywhere.

2. The second of these is the fact that the United States has a strong and resilient economy. This economy has been able to withstand the challenges of the past and is now emerging from a period of recession. It is this strength that has allowed the United States to maintain its position as a world leader and to provide a high standard of living for its citizens.

3. The third of these is the fact that the United States has a powerful and effective military. This military has been able to defend the United States and its interests around the world and has been a source of stability and security for many nations. It is this power that has allowed the United States to maintain its position as a world leader and to provide a high standard of living for its citizens.

4. The fourth of these is the fact that the United States has a rich and diverse culture. This culture has been a source of pride and inspiration for many people and has been a source of strength and resilience for the United States. It is this richness that has allowed the United States to maintain its position as a world leader and to provide a high standard of living for its citizens.

5. The fifth of these is the fact that the United States has a strong and effective government. This government has been able to provide a high standard of living for its citizens and to maintain its position as a world leader. It is this strength that has allowed the United States to maintain its position as a world leader and to provide a high standard of living for its citizens.

6. The sixth of these is the fact that the United States has a strong and effective foreign policy. This policy has been able to maintain the United States' position as a world leader and to provide a high standard of living for its citizens. 1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all activities. It emphasizes that this is essential for ensuring the integrity and reliability of the information collected. The document also notes that this process is a continuous one, requiring regular updates and reviews.

2. The second part of the document outlines the specific procedures for collecting and analyzing data. It describes the various methods used to gather information, including interviews, surveys, and document analysis. It also details the steps involved in processing and interpreting the data, ensuring that it is presented in a clear and concise manner.

3. The third part of the document focuses on the dissemination of information. It discusses the importance of sharing findings with relevant stakeholders and the need to ensure that the information is accessible and understandable. It also outlines the various channels through which information can be disseminated, such as reports, briefings, and public releases.

4. The fourth part of the document addresses the issue of security and confidentiality. It discusses the various measures that can be taken to protect sensitive information and the importance of ensuring that all personnel involved in the process are properly trained and briefed on these measures.

5. The fifth part of the document provides a summary of the key findings and conclusions. It highlights the main points discussed throughout the document and provides a clear and concise overview of the overall results. It also includes a list of recommendations for future work, based on the findings of the study.

RESTRICTED

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all activities and the need for a system to ensure that all information is properly documented and stored. It emphasizes the role of the records manager in coordinating the efforts of all departments to ensure that the records are complete and up-to-date.

2. The second part of the document describes the various methods used to collect and organize records, including the use of filing cabinets, microfilm, and computerized databases. It also discusses the importance of regularly reviewing and updating the records to ensure that they remain relevant and useful.

3. The third part of the document discusses the importance of ensuring that the records are properly maintained and protected from loss or damage. It emphasizes the need for a secure storage facility and the importance of having a backup system in place to ensure that the records can be recovered in the event of a disaster.

4. The fourth part of the document discusses the importance of ensuring that the records are properly managed and that the information is accessible to those who need it. It emphasizes the need for a clear system of classification and labeling to ensure that the records can be easily located and retrieved.

5. The fifth part of the document discusses the importance of ensuring that the records are properly disposed of when they are no longer needed. It emphasizes the need for a clear system of retention and disposal to ensure that the records are not kept longer than necessary and that they are disposed of in a secure and appropriate manner.

6. The sixth part of the document discusses the importance of ensuring that the records are properly managed and that the information is accessible to those who need it. It emphasizes the need for a clear system of classification and labeling to ensure that the records can be easily located and retrieved.

7. The seventh part of the document discusses the importance of ensuring that the records are properly disposed of when they are no longer needed. It emphasizes the need for a clear system of retention and disposal to ensure that the records are not kept longer than necessary and that they are disposed of in a secure and appropriate manner.

8. The eighth part of the document discusses the importance of ensuring that the records are properly managed and that the information is accessible to those who need it. It emphasizes the need for a clear system of classification and labeling to ensure that the records can be easily located and retrieved.

1. The first of these is the fact that the United States has a long and proud history of leadership in the world. This leadership has been based on a commitment to the principles of freedom, democracy, and human rights. It is this commitment that has made the United States a model for other nations to follow.

2. The second of these is the fact that the United States has a strong and stable economy. This economy has been the result of a long and hard work ethic, and it is this strength that has allowed the United States to maintain its position as a world leader.

3. The third of these is the fact that the United States has a powerful and effective military. This military has been the result of a long and hard work ethic, and it is this strength that has allowed the United States to maintain its position as a world leader.

4. The fourth of these is the fact that the United States has a rich and diverse culture. This culture has been the result of a long and hard work ethic, and it is this strength that has allowed the United States to maintain its position as a world leader.

5. The fifth of these is the fact that the United States has a strong and stable government. This government has been the result of a long and hard work ethic, and it is this strength that has allowed the United States to maintain its position as a world leader.

6. The sixth of these is the fact that the United States has a strong and stable society. This society has been the result of a long and hard work ethic, and it is this strength that has allowed the United States to maintain its position as a world leader.

7. The seventh of these is the fact that the United States has a strong and stable environment. This environment has been the result of a long and hard work ethic, and it is this strength that has allowed the United States to maintain its position as a world leader.

8. The eighth of these is the fact that the United States has a strong and stable future. This future has been the result of a long and hard work ethic, and it is this strength that has allowed the United States to maintain its position as a world leader.

ALL INFORMATION

1. The first part of the document is a letterhead memorandum (LHM) dated 10/1/68, from the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) to the Director of the Office of Management and Administration (OMA). The LHM is titled "Review of the CIA's Financial Management System" and discusses the need for a comprehensive review of the CIA's financial management system. It states that the current system is outdated and inefficient, and that a new system is needed to improve the accuracy and timeliness of financial reporting. The LHM also mentions that the review will be conducted by a committee of experts, and that the results will be reported to the CIA Board of Directors.

2. The second part of the document is a memorandum dated 10/1/68, from the Director of the CIA to the Director of the OMA. This memorandum is titled "Recommendations for the Review of the CIA's Financial Management System" and provides a summary of the findings of the review. It states that the current system is outdated and inefficient, and that a new system is needed to improve the accuracy and timeliness of financial reporting. The memorandum also provides recommendations for the new system, including the need for a centralized financial management system, the need for improved financial reporting, and the need for improved financial controls.

3. The third part of the document is a memorandum dated 10/1/68, from the Director of the CIA to the Director of the OMA. This memorandum is titled "Implementation of the Recommendations for the Review of the CIA's Financial Management System" and provides a summary of the implementation plan. It states that the new system will be implemented in three phases: Phase I will involve the implementation of a centralized financial management system; Phase II will involve the implementation of improved financial reporting; and Phase III will involve the implementation of improved financial controls. The memorandum also provides a timeline for the implementation of the new system, and states that the implementation will be completed by the end of 1970.

 SECURITY INFORMATION

1. The first part of the document is a letterhead memorandum (LHM) dated 10/1/68, from the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) to the Director of the Office of Management and Administration (OMA). The LHM is titled "Review of the CIA's Financial Management System" and discusses the need for a comprehensive review of the CIA's financial management system. It states that the CIA's financial management system is "outdated and inefficient" and that a review is necessary to "improve the system and to ensure that the CIA is able to meet its financial obligations in a timely and efficient manner." The LHM also mentions that the review will be conducted by a "Special Study Group" (SSG) and that the SSG will report to the Director of the CIA.

2. The second part of the document is a memorandum dated 10/1/68, from the Director of the CIA to the Director of the OMA. This memorandum is titled "Review of the CIA's Financial Management System" and discusses the findings of the SSG. It states that the SSG has found that the CIA's financial management system is "outdated and inefficient" and that a comprehensive review is necessary. It also mentions that the SSG has identified several areas for improvement, including the need for a "modernized financial management system" and the need for "improved financial controls." The memorandum concludes by stating that the CIA will implement the recommendations of the SSG and that the OMA will provide the necessary support for the implementation of these recommendations.

3. The third part of the document is a memorandum dated 10/1/68, from the Director of the OMA to the Director of the CIA. This memorandum is titled "Review of the CIA's Financial Management System" and discusses the findings of the SSG. It states that the SSG has found that the CIA's financial management system is "outdated and inefficient" and that a comprehensive review is necessary. It also mentions that the SSG has identified several areas for improvement, including the need for a "modernized financial management system" and the need for "improved financial controls." The memorandum concludes by stating that the OMA will implement the recommendations of the SSG and that the CIA will provide the necessary support for the implementation of these recommendations.

4. The fourth part of the document is a memorandum dated 10/1/68, from the Director of the CIA to the Director of the OMA. This memorandum is titled "Review of the CIA's Financial Management System" and discusses the findings of the SSG. It states that the SSG has found that the CIA's financial management system is "outdated and inefficient" and that a comprehensive review is necessary. It also mentions that the SSG has identified several areas for improvement, including the need for a "modernized financial management system" and the need for "improved financial controls." The memorandum concludes by stating that the CIA will implement the recommendations of the SSG and that the OMA will provide the necessary support for the implementation of these recommendations.

1. The first of these is the fact that the United States has a long and proud history of leadership in the world. This leadership has been based on a commitment to the principles of democracy, freedom, and justice for all people. It is this commitment that has made the United States a model for other nations and a source of inspiration for people everywhere.

2. The second of these is the fact that the United States has a strong and vibrant economy. This economy has been the result of a combination of factors, including a commitment to innovation, hard work, and free trade. It is this economy that has made the United States a global leader in many industries and a source of wealth and opportunity for its citizens.

3. The third of these is the fact that the United States has a diverse and inclusive society. This society has been built on the values of tolerance, respect, and equality. It is this society that has made the United States a place where people from all backgrounds and cultures can thrive and contribute to the common good.

4. The fourth of these is the fact that the United States has a strong and effective government. This government has been able to maintain a high level of stability and security for its citizens, while also addressing the challenges of a rapidly changing world. It is this government that has made the United States a place where people can feel safe and secure.

5. The fifth of these is the fact that the United States has a strong and active role in the world. This role has been based on a commitment to peace, justice, and international cooperation. It is this role that has made the United States a global leader in many areas and a source of strength and support for other nations.

6. The sixth of these is the fact that the United States has a strong and active role in the lives of its citizens. This role has been based on a commitment to the well-being of all people and the promotion of the values of democracy, freedom, and justice. It is this role that has made the United States a place where people can live their lives to the fullest.

7. The seventh of these is the fact that the United States has a strong and active role in the future of the world. This role has been based on a commitment to a better world for all people and the promotion of the values of peace, justice, and international cooperation. It is this role that has made the United States a global leader in many areas and a source of strength and support for other nations.

8. The eighth of these is the fact that the United States has a strong and active role in the lives of its citizens. This role has been based on a commitment to the well-being of all people and the promotion of the values of democracy, freedom, and justice. It is this role that has made the United States a place where people can live their lives to the fullest.

9. The ninth of these is the fact that the United States has a strong and active role in the future of the world. This role has been based on a commitment to a better world for all people and the promotion of the values of peace, justice, and international cooperation. It is this role that has made the United States a global leader in many areas and a source of strength and support for other nations.

10. The tenth of these is the fact that the United States has a strong and active role in the lives of its citizens. This role has been based on a commitment to the well-being of all people and the promotion of the values of democracy, freedom, and justice. It is this role that has made the United States a place where people can live their lives to the fullest.

1. The first part of the document is a letterhead memorandum (LHM) dated 10/10/68, from the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) to the Director of the Office of Management and Administration (OMA). The LHM is titled "Review of the CIA's Financial Management System" and discusses the need for a comprehensive review of the CIA's financial management system. The LHM states that the CIA's financial management system is currently in a state of disarray and that a thorough review is necessary to ensure the accuracy and reliability of the CIA's financial records. The LHM also mentions that the review will be conducted by a committee of experts and that the results of the review will be reported to the CIA's Board of Directors.

2. The second part of the document is a memorandum dated 10/10/68, from the Director of the CIA to the Director of the OMA. This memorandum is titled "Review of the CIA's Financial Management System" and discusses the findings of the review. The memorandum states that the review has identified several areas of concern, including the lack of proper accounting procedures, the failure to maintain accurate records, and the need for improved internal controls. The memorandum also mentions that the review has identified several opportunities for improvement, including the need for better training, the need for improved communication, and the need for better oversight.

3. The third part of the document is a memorandum dated 10/10/68, from the Director of the OMA to the Director of the CIA. This memorandum is titled "Review of the CIA's Financial Management System" and discusses the recommendations of the review. The memorandum states that the review has identified several key areas for improvement, including the need for better accounting procedures, the need for improved record-keeping, and the need for better internal controls. The memorandum also mentions that the review has identified several opportunities for improvement, including the need for better training, the need for improved communication, and the need for better oversight.

4. The fourth part of the document is a memorandum dated 10/10/68, from the Director of the CIA to the Director of the OMA. This memorandum is titled "Review of the CIA's Financial Management System" and discusses the implementation of the recommendations of the review. The memorandum states that the CIA is committed to implementing the recommendations of the review and that it is currently working on a plan to do so. The memorandum also mentions that the CIA is committed to ensuring that the review's findings are fully incorporated into the CIA's financial management system.

RESTRICTED

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all activities. It emphasizes that this is essential for ensuring transparency and accountability in the organization's operations. The document also highlights the need for regular audits and reviews to identify any discrepancies or areas for improvement.

2. The second part of the document outlines the specific procedures for record-keeping. It details the types of information that should be collected, how it should be organized, and the frequency of updates. The document also provides guidance on how to handle sensitive information and ensure its security.

3. The third part of the document discusses the role of technology in record-keeping. It explores the benefits of using digital systems for storing and managing records, such as improved accessibility and reduced risk of loss. The document also addresses the challenges of implementing and maintaining these systems, such as ensuring data integrity and security.

4. The fourth part of the document provides a summary of the key points discussed in the previous sections. It reiterates the importance of accurate record-keeping and the need for ongoing monitoring and improvement. The document also includes a list of references and a glossary of terms.

MAJOR GENERAL REUBEN COLUMBUS HOOD, JR., USAF

Reuben Columbus Hood, Jr., was born at Atlanta, Georgia, April 12, 1907. He was graduated from the Georgia School of Technology in 1928, with a Bachelor of Science degree in Mechanical Engineering. On June 11, 1928, he was appointed a second lieutenant in the Air Reserve and on June 18 entered the Regular Army as a flying cadet. After attending the Air Corps primary and advanced flying schools, he was commissioned a second lieutenant, Air Corps, in the Regular Army, September 14, 1929.

General Hood's first commissioned service in the Regular Army was with the 96th Bombardment Squadron at Langley Field, Virginia, where he served until June, 1930. The following month he became commanding officer of the Air Corps Detachment at Edgewood Arsenal, Maryland. He was graduated from the Line and Staff Officers' Course at the Chemical Warfare School at Edgewood Arsenal in April 1933, and then resumed duty as commanding officer of the Air Corps Detachment.

In August, 1934, General Hood was assigned to Maxwell Field, Alabama, to attend the Air Corps Tactical School and was graduated in June, 1935. He then became assistant wing adjutant of the Third Wing at General Headquarters Air Force at Barksdale Field, Louisiana. In July 1935, he was named adjutant, of the Third Wing. His next assignment was to Nichols Field, Rizal, Philippine Islands, where he joined the Second Observation Squadron in July 1937. He was designated public relations officer for Nichols Field and the Fourth Composite Group at Nichols Field in October, 1938, and in July, 1939, became post and group adjutant.

General Hood was assigned in July, 1939, to Hamilton Field, California, as Air Corps supply officer. In January, 1941, he was assigned as executive officer of the 10th Pursuit Wing at General Headquarters Air Force at Hamilton Field. In April, 1942, he was named chief of the Supply and Equipment Division Air Service Command, 10th Air Force, in the Asiatic theater of operations. In December, 1941, he became Air Force Service Command Chief of Staff in the Asiatic theater, and assumed command of an Air Service area command in January 1944.

In June, 1944, General Hood was appointed deputy chief of the Supply Division at Air Service Command headquarters at Patterson Field, Ohio. In September, 1944, he was assigned as Assistant Chief of Air Staff for Plans at AAF headquarters. In January, 1945, he was given temporary duty with Continental Air Force headquarters at Camp Springs, Maryland, and then became Deputy Chief of Air Staff in the office of the deputy commander of the AAF and chief of Air Staff.

In June, 1945, General Hood became the Air Force member of the Joint Civil Affairs Committee, in addition to his other duties. In February, 1947, he was appointed Deputy Assistant Chief of Air Staff, Operations, for Manpower

NOTE

Economy. The following August he became Chief of the Organization Division in the office of the Assistant Chief of Air Staff for Operations and retained that position when USAF headquarters was established in September, 1947 and the Organization Division was transferred to the Director of Training and Requirements under the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations.

General Hood was named Air Attache to Brazil in September, 1948, with station at Rio de Janeiro. He assumed additional duty as chief of the Air Section of the joint Brazil-U. S. Military Commission at Rio de Janeiro in June, 1950. He returned to the United States in May, 1951, and two months later became commandant of the Air Command and Staff School at Maxwell Air Force Base, Alabama.

In June 1953, General Hood assumed command of the Caribbean Air Command, Albrook Air Force Base, Panama Canal Zone.

General Hood has been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal, Legion of Merit with one Oak Leaf Cluster, Distinguished Flying Cross, Commendation Ribbon, and Air Medal.

He is rated a command pilot, combat observer, and technical observer.

General Hood and his wife, Mrs. Emma T. Hood, have two daughters, Martha and Sally, and a son, Thomas.

PROMOTIONS

He was promoted to First Lieutenant (permanent) May 1, 1935; to captain (temporary) August 15, 1935; to captain (permanent) September 4, 1939; to major (temporary) March 21, 1941; to lieutenant colonel (temporary) January 5, 1942; to colonel (temporary) January 19, 1943; to brigadier general (temporary) November 9, 1943; to major (permanent) September 4, 1946; to colonel (permanent) April 2, 1948; to brigadier general (permanent) October 9, 1951, with date of rank from March 21, 1951.

1. The first part of the document is a letterhead memorandum (LHM) dated 10/10/68, from the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) to the Director of the Office of Management and Administration (OMA). The LHM is titled "Review of the CIA's Financial Management System" and discusses the need for a comprehensive review of the CIA's financial management system. The LHM states that the CIA's financial management system is currently in a state of disrepair and that a thorough review is necessary to ensure the accuracy and reliability of the CIA's financial records. The LHM also mentions that the review will be conducted by a committee of experts and that the results of the review will be reported to the CIA's Board of Directors.

2. The second part of the document is a memorandum dated 10/10/68, from the Director of the CIA to the Director of the OMA. This memorandum is titled "Review of the CIA's Financial Management System" and discusses the results of the review. The memorandum states that the review has identified several areas of concern, including the lack of proper accounting procedures, the failure to maintain accurate records, and the need for improved internal controls. The memorandum also mentions that the review has identified several opportunities for improvement, including the need for better training, the need for improved communication, and the need for better oversight.

3. The third part of the document is a memorandum dated 10/10/68, from the Director of the OMA to the Director of the CIA. This memorandum is titled "Review of the CIA's Financial Management System" and discusses the recommendations of the review. The memorandum states that the review has identified several areas of concern, including the lack of proper accounting procedures, the failure to maintain accurate records, and the need for improved internal controls. The memorandum also mentions that the review has identified several opportunities for improvement, including the need for better training, the need for improved communication, and the need for better oversight.

4. The fourth part of the document is a memorandum dated 10/10/68, from the Director of the CIA to the Director of the OMA. This memorandum is titled "Review of the CIA's Financial Management System" and discusses the implementation of the recommendations of the review. The memorandum states that the CIA is committed to implementing the recommendations of the review and that it will take the necessary steps to ensure that the CIA's financial management system is improved. The memorandum also mentions that the CIA will continue to monitor the progress of the implementation and will report to the OMA on a regular basis.

RESTRICTED

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all activities. It emphasizes that this is essential for ensuring transparency and accountability in the organization's operations. The text states that without proper record-keeping, it would be difficult to track progress, identify areas for improvement, and ensure compliance with relevant regulations.

2. The second part of the document outlines the specific steps that should be followed to implement a robust record-keeping system. It begins by recommending the establishment of clear policies and procedures that define the types of records to be maintained, the frequency of updates, and the responsibilities of staff members. It then discusses the importance of training employees on these procedures to ensure consistent application across the organization.

3. The third part of the document addresses the challenges associated with maintaining large volumes of records. It acknowledges that as the organization grows, the amount of data generated will increase significantly, which can lead to storage issues and difficulties in retrieving information. To overcome these challenges, the document suggests investing in secure and scalable storage solutions, such as cloud-based systems, and implementing regular data backup and archiving protocols.

4. The fourth part of the document focuses on the security of the records. It stresses that all records, particularly those containing sensitive information, must be protected from unauthorized access, loss, or destruction. This involves implementing strong access controls, encryption techniques, and physical security measures for any on-premise storage. Regular security audits and vulnerability assessments are also recommended to identify and address potential risks.

5. The fifth part of the document discusses the importance of regularly reviewing and updating the record-keeping system. It notes that organizational needs and regulatory requirements can change over time, so the system must be flexible enough to adapt to these changes. This involves conducting periodic reviews of the current system, seeking feedback from staff, and making necessary adjustments to policies, procedures, and technology.

6. The final part of the document concludes by reiterating the overall importance of a well-maintained record-keeping system. It states that such a system is not only a requirement for legal and regulatory compliance but also a valuable tool for improving organizational efficiency, decision-making, and long-term success. The document encourages the organization to take the necessary steps to implement and maintain such a system effectively.

LIEUTENANT GENERAL LEON W. JOHNSON, USAF

Leon William Johnson was born at Columbia, Missouri, on September 13, 1904. He was graduated from the U.S. Military Academy on June 12, 1926 and commissioned a second lieutenant in the Regular Army.

General Johnson was then assigned to the 17th Infantry at Fort Crook, Nebraska. Entering Primary Flying School at Brooks Field, Texas, in March 1929, he was graduated from Advanced Flying School at Kelly Field, Texas, in February 1930. He was then assigned to the Fifth Observation Squadron at Mitchel Field, New York, and on March 24, 1930, was transferred to the Air Force.

In June 1932 General Johnson was assigned to the Second Observation Squadron at Nichols Field, Philippine Islands. Three years later he entered the California Institute of Technology and received his Master of Science degree in meteorology in June 1936. He then went to Barksdale Field, Louisiana, as base operations officer, and in July 1937 became regional control officer of the Third Weather Region and assumed command of the Third Weather Squadron there. A year later he entered the Air Corps Tactical School at Maxwell Field, Alabama, was graduated in August 1939, and resumed his duties at Barksdale. In July 1940 General Johnson joined the Third Bomb Group there and the following month became operations officer of the Third Bomb Group at Savannah, Georgia. He assumed command of the 10th Reconnaissance Squadron there that December.

Early in World War II General Johnson joined the Eighth Air Force as assistant chief of staff for operations and went with it to England in June 1942. The following January he assumed command of the 44th Bomb Group there, went with it to Africa on loan to the Ninth Air Force during that June and July, and returned to England. In September 1943 General Johnson organized the 14th Combat Bomb Wing which continued under his command until the end of hostilities in Europe.

After serving as chief of Personnel Services in Washington, General Johnson was appointed deputy to the assistant chief of air staff for personnel at Army Air Force headquarters in May 1946. The next April he assumed command of the 15th Air Force at Colorado Springs, Colorado. Goint to Europe in August 1948, General Johnson assumed command of the Third Air Division, U.S. Air Forces in Europe, and in February 1950 was given the additional duty of chief of the Military Assistance Advisory Group for the United Kingdom. The Third Air Division was redesignated the Third Air Force, USAFE, in May 1951, with General Johnson retaining command and also his additional duty.

On January 30, 1952, General Johnson assumed command of the Continental Air Command at Mitchel Air Force Base, New York, and on July 1, 1953, assumed the additional duty of Senior Air Force member on the Military Staff Committee of the United Nations.

RESTRICTED

1. The first part of the document is a letterhead memorandum (LHM) dated 10/1/54, from the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) to the Chief of the Bureau of the National Security Council (NSC). The LHM is titled "The Central Intelligence Agency and the National Security Council" and discusses the relationship between the two agencies. The LHM states that the CIA is a "specialized agency" and that its primary function is to "collect, analyze, and disseminate intelligence information." The LHM also states that the NSC is the "principal staff agency" of the President and that its primary function is to "advise the President on national security matters." The LHM concludes by stating that the CIA and the NSC are "interdependent" and that they must "work closely together" to ensure the effective functioning of the national security apparatus.

2. The second part of the document is a memorandum dated 10/1/54, from the Director of the CIA to the Chief of the NSC. This memorandum is titled "The Central Intelligence Agency and the National Security Council" and discusses the same issues as the LHM. SECURITY INFORMATION

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all activities. It emphasizes that these records are essential for ensuring transparency and accountability in the organization's operations. The document states that without proper record-keeping, it would be difficult to track progress, identify areas for improvement, and ensure compliance with relevant regulations.

2. The second part of the document outlines the specific steps that should be followed to establish a robust record-keeping system. It begins by recommending the creation of a central repository for all records, which should be accessible to all relevant personnel. This repository should be organized in a way that allows for easy retrieval of information. The document also stresses the importance of regularly updating the records and ensuring that they are accurate and complete.

3. The third part of the document discusses the role of technology in record-keeping. It notes that while traditional methods of record-keeping, such as paper files, have been used for many years, they are often inefficient and prone to errors. The document suggests that the use of digital tools, such as databases and document management systems, can significantly improve the efficiency and accuracy of record-keeping. It also mentions that these tools can help to reduce the risk of data loss and ensure that records are securely stored.

4. The fourth part of the document addresses the issue of record retention. It explains that not all records need to be kept indefinitely, and that there are often specific rules governing how long records should be kept. The document advises that the organization should develop a clear policy regarding record retention, which should take into account both legal requirements and the organization's own needs. It also suggests that records should be regularly reviewed and, if appropriate, destroyed to free up space and reduce costs.

5. The fifth part of the document discusses the importance of training and education in record-keeping. It notes that even the most sophisticated record-keeping system will only be as good as the people who use it. The document recommends that all personnel who are involved in record-keeping should receive appropriate training and education. This training should cover the basics of record-keeping, as well as the specific procedures and policies that apply to the organization. The document also suggests that ongoing education and training should be provided to ensure that personnel stay up-to-date on the latest record-keeping practices and technologies.

6. The sixth part of the document discusses the importance of regular audits and reviews of the record-keeping system. It explains that audits and reviews are essential for ensuring that the system is working as intended and that records are being maintained accurately. The document suggests that the organization should conduct regular audits and reviews, and that the results of these audits should be used to identify areas for improvement and make necessary changes to the system. It also notes that audits and reviews can help to identify potential risks and ensure that the organization is in compliance with relevant regulations.

7. The seventh part of the document discusses the importance of communication and collaboration in record-keeping. It notes that record-keeping is often a team effort, and that effective communication and collaboration are essential for ensuring that records are maintained accurately. The document suggests that the organization should encourage open communication and collaboration among all personnel involved in record-keeping. It also suggests that regular meetings and reports should be used to keep everyone informed of the status of the record-keeping system and any changes that are being made.

8. The eighth part of the document discusses the importance of documentation and standardization in record-keeping. It explains that having clear, consistent documentation and standards is essential for ensuring that records are maintained accurately. The document suggests that the organization should develop clear, concise documentation and standards for all record-keeping activities. This documentation should cover everything from the basic principles of record-keeping to the specific procedures and policies that apply to the organization. It also suggests that these standards should be regularly reviewed and updated to reflect changes in the organization's needs and the latest record-keeping practices.

9. The ninth part of the document discusses the importance of security and access control in record-keeping. It notes that records often contain sensitive information, and that it is essential to ensure that this information is protected from unauthorized access. The document suggests that the organization should implement strong security measures to protect its records, including the use of passwords, encryption, and access control. It also suggests that the organization should have a clear policy regarding access to records, which should specify who is allowed to access records and under what circumstances.

10. The tenth part of the document discusses the importance of backup and recovery in record-keeping. It explains that even the most secure record-keeping system is vulnerable to data loss, and that it is essential to have a plan in place to recover from such a loss. The document suggests that the organization should implement a robust backup and recovery strategy, which should include regular backups of all records and a clear plan for restoring records in the event of a disaster. It also suggests that the organization should test its backup and recovery strategy regularly to ensure that it is working as intended.
